The Flow Show

Strife Begins at Forty

Scores on the Doors: commods 58.9%, oil 43.0%, ACWX 14.8%, SPX 13.9%, HY 2.3%, cash 2.2%, US$ 1.7%, gold 1.0%, IG -0.4%, govt bonds -1.5%, bitcoin -27.9% YTD.

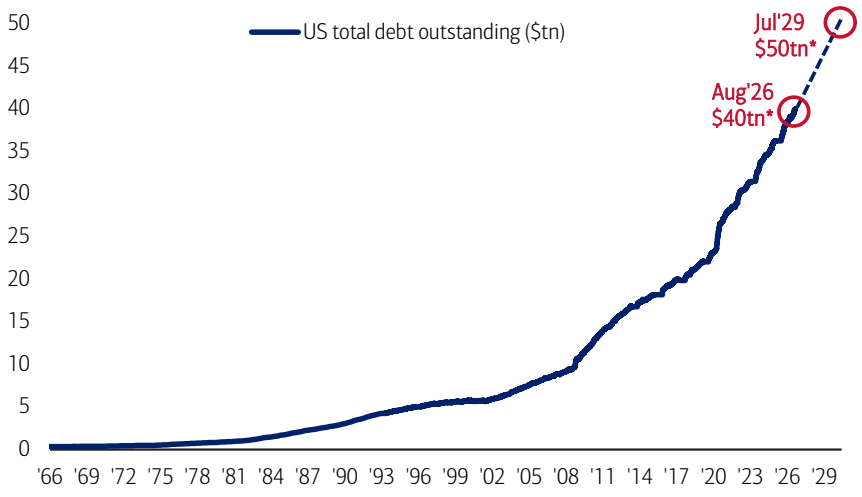

Zeitgeist: "$12.5bn for Lakers why bonds can't rally on no inflation and no jobs growth."

The Biggest Picture: US national debt set to surpass $40tn in coming days, on course for $50tn by '29 (Chart 2); cost of servicing debt $1.4tn in past 12 months, will keep rising until 5-year UST yields drop below 3¼% (Chart 3), reinforcing Anything But Bonds asset allocation; US stocks storming to new highs same day government selling 30-year USTs at highest yield (5.126%) in 25 years "tracks" as the kids say.

Tale of the Tape: asset allocation rules of the road in 2020s remain ABB (Anything but Bonds), ABC (Anywhere but China), ABD (Anything but the US Dollar), AI (all-in on AI), all bolstered in '26 by conviction policymakers see nominal GDP boom as solution to indebtedness and view stock market as too big to fail...why Wall St trades with no fear.

The Price is Right: loadsa EPS, $10tn wealth surge '26, >$1tn AI capex '27...door wide open for bulls to rip risk higher...only constraints are bonds (yield surge), voters (socialist surge), plus fact that all positioned for upside.

Weekly Flows: $25.4bn to cash, $23.8bn to bonds, $16.1bn to stocks, $6.3bn to gold, $0.3bn to crypto.

Flows to Know:

- Gold: $6.3bn inflow, biggest since Jan'26 (Chart 11),
- IG bonds: $10.6bn inflow, biggest in 5 weeks,
- EM debt: $1.4bn inflow, biggest in 7 weeks,
- Europe equities: $1.2bn inflow, biggest since Feb'26 (Chart 12),
- China equities: $14.5bn outflow, biggest since May'26,
- Korea equities: $2.0bn inflow, 7th week of inflows (Chart 13),
- Tech: $1.2bn outflow, biggest in 7 weeks (Chart 14),
- Materials: $2.5bn inflow, biggest since Mar'26.

BofA Private Clients: $4.7tn AUM...66.4% stocks (all time high), 17.0% bonds (lowest since Mar'22), 9.4% cash (lowest ever); within bonds private clients modestly extending duration...allocation to T-notes (2-10 year duration) up 15% YTD vs. allocation to T-bills (<1 year duration) down >30% since Nov (Chart 21– but no interest in T-bonds); in stocks, largest weekly inflow since Sep'22 (Chart 5 – note underlying equity ETF share count up strong 6.6% YTD); in ETFs past 4 weeks, private clients buying Japan, muni bond, and TIPS ETFs, and selling EM debt, utilities, and financial sector ETFs.

BofA Bull & Bear Indicator: falls to 9.3 from 9.7 on weaker flows to HY bonds, outflows from tech & healthcare; positioning excessively bullish (caveat "greed" always more difficult to reverse than "fear"); since inception, 17 sell signals from BofA Bull & Bear Indicator, with average loss for global stocks of 2-3% over 2-3 months, hit ratio of ~60%, max drawdowns of 15-20%; since May 26th "sell signal" SPX up 4%, ACWI up 3% (albeit -5% drawdown May 26th to July 30th, stopped by US/Japan FX intervention & bumper Mag7 EPS); excess positioning interrupts bull markets, but end of bull market requires combo of excess positioning, excess profit optimism and policy tightening; note "old" Bull & Bear Indicator at 7.8 (see BofA Bull & Bear Indicator).

BofA Global Fund Manager Survey: Aug FMS released 18th; FMS sentiment data that would say "take profits" would be another drop in cash levels from uber-low 3.6% in July, surge in FMS equity allocation from 42% OW to more extreme levels (>52%); FMS sentiment data that would say "keep adding" would be cooling of July FMS bull conviction of "no landing" for macro (record 54% in July), "no Fed hike" before midterms (83%), "no cut" in AI capex (61%), and "no sweep" by DEMs in midterms (27%).

Events, dear boy, events: biggest market events in next few months...

- Aug 28th: Warsh speech at Jackson Hole
- Sep 4th: Aug payrolls
- Sep 11th: Aug CPI
- Sep 16th: FOMC (hike probability currently 35%)
- Sep 18th: BoJ (hike probability 74%)
- Sep 24th: Trump-Xi summit
- Oct 4th: Brazil election

- Oct 28th: FOMC (6 days before midterms, hike probability = 55%)
- Nov 3rd: US midterm elections.

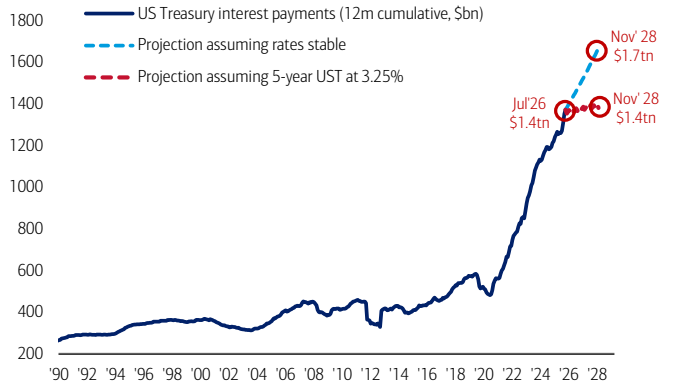

On ABB: we say trade is long REITs/XBI/KRE/small cap; asset allocation conviction remains Anything But Bonds; and yes, surge in bond yields always how booms/bubbles end (UST yields +200bps to end Nifty Fifty bubble, JGB yields +230bps to end Japan bubble, UST +260bps in '99); but fascinating to see that, despite higher yields in '26, the unloved, long duration assets are quietly outperforming (REITs/XBI/KRE/small cap), discounting "peak yields" in coming quarters because next leg higher in yields too dangerous for authorities to allow to happen; US-Japan FX intervention strong signal US admin does not want >5% UST yields, and with headline CPI trending to 2.8-3.6% by midterms, core CPI to 2.1-2.6% (Chart 6), hawkish Warsh at Aug 28th Jackson Hole/Sept 16th FOMC plus Bank of Japan hike Sept 18th could signal "Mission Accomplished" to cap yields & end yen collapse risk.

On ABC: we say trade is long Hong Kong property sector; "buy humiliation, sell hubris" is smart secular allocation, and nothing more humiliated than China & real estate this decade; Hong Kong property stocks cheap (HSP same price as 30 years ago - Chart 7), trading 12x earnings; capital heading back to Asia as region starts 3rd secular bull market of past 40 years (Chart 8) spurred by Japan/Korea/Taiwan tech, and AI in China (already dominant EVs, renewables); Hong Kong benefiting from fading allure of Dubai (geopolitical conflict) & Singapore (taxation); end of Anywhere But China asset allocation and big rotation from China bonds to stocks awaits China consumer growth acceleration (Chart 9), but HK property = early opportunity.

On ABD: we say trade is long gold...still best hedge against dollar debasement, bond collapse, asset inflation, capitalist populism vs socialist populism politics of 2020s (Chart 10); Anything But Dollar also positive for EM assets... Oct 4th Brazil election is key directionally as LatAm assets have been rewarded by election of more business-friendly governments...all seven presidential elections since Jan'25 have been won by right-wing/right-leaning candidates, and leftist Lula vs. right-wing Bolsonaro next big test.

On AI: we say trade is short AI bonds as >$1tn capex and negative net cash flow = big issuance; optimal bubble strategy remains long "hubris" (AI) & long "humiliation" (out-of-favor, distressed cyclical plays lifted by final bubble surge in nominal GDP, e.g. EM in '99 internet mania, oil in '07/'08 subprime/China bubble, we think most likely consumer, China next few quarters; and play politics...Texas Governor race between GOP incumbent Abbott (48%) & DEM challenger Hinojosa (44%) referendum on affordability vs. AI data centers (335 in TX, 247 proposals for new ones); announcement of temporary pause on data center expansion by business-friendly Abbott reflects electoral unease re affordability and energy grid risks; should Trump hold Senate & Abbott hold Texas, expect stocks (esp. AI) to rip into bubbly '27; but should DEMs take Senate/TX Governor mansion on Nov 3rd, then big slump in stocks (>10%), US dollar, and bond yields into year-end.
